

NOT SELECTED

In a society where intimacy is forbidden and reproduction is tightly controlled, every citizen lives under the constant gaze of a system designed to eliminate risk, desire, and disorder. Compliance is not only expected. It is embedded into daily life, monitored through identity bracelets, behavioural scoring, and the invisible authority of a surveillance network known only as the Eye.

When two citizens form a secret emotional bond, what begins as a private act of human connection quickly becomes a life-threatening breach. Their relationship must remain hidden at all costs, but when it leads to an unauthorised pregnancy, concealment is no longer simply a matter of survival. It becomes a countdown. As scrutiny tightens and the system begins to correct what it cannot permit, love, fear, and instinct collide inside a world where even the body is no longer private.

Tense, intimate, and escalation-driven, NOT SELECTED is a dystopian moral thriller about forbidden love, state control, and the terrifying cost of choosing something human in a world built to erase it.
