

THE SELECTION follows an overlooked young woman who becomes one of seven finalists invited into the opulent home of a billionaire bachelor running an exclusive wife competition. For one week, the women must live under the same roof, submit to his rules, and navigate a world of luxury, rivalry, seduction, and quiet humiliation as he decides who is worthy of becoming his chosen partner.

At first, the contest appears to be exactly what it claims: a ruthless spectacle of desire, status, and female competition played out behind closed doors. But as tensions sharpen and private encounters begin to shift the balance of power inside the house, the least likely finalist starts to sense that the selection process is far more calculated than anyone realises. The women have not been chosen at random, and the man at the centre of the game may be searching for something far more dangerous than love.

Set within a glossy, emotionally charged world of wealth, obsession, and control, THE SELECTION is a romantic melodrama built on secrecy, power, and the cost of being chosen.
